

Sum Ergo Tele #1Serial # 006

#006 barks when the drummer pushes the rhythm too hard. And, as any guitarist knows, that's always useful. But, like any well-trained jackal, she only bites when you tell her to. She has been known to turn her blonde curves to the doorman and tap the coils on her Seymour Duncan vintage stacks to gain entry ahead of long queues of wannabes. But once she's inside the joint, she typically brings both coils to the boil and, when she does, you should see the locals sweat into their bourbons. You might want to get a nap in the afternoon because her chunky neck and slightly wider-than-normal string spacing will have you chicken picking till much later than your mama said you should stay out.
